Although it's an upscale hotel today, the Bienville House Hotel was once a manufacturing plant and rice mill that was partially converted to a hotel in 1835. Decades of preservation and restoration have made it a luxurious French Quarter hotel, yet its treasured past is still front and center.

Each room at the Bienville House Hotel is built around the classic French design and features its own charming character. When it comes to a comfortable stay, don't forget about your pet. Both you and your pet's stay will be one of a kind.

The French Quarter is known for its dining scene, and the Bienville House Hotel has one of its most unique restaurants. Beachbum Berry's Latitude 29 is a full-service, upscale Tiki bar and restaurant where you can try out creative cocktails and modern Polynesian cuisine. In fact, Food & Wine Magazine says that founder and designer Jeff "Beachbum" Berry is "one of the world's leading rum experts," so be ready to sample something truly amazing.

Along with its bar and restaurant, the Bienville House is one of the few hotels in New Orleans with a heated salt-water swimming pool. As you relax poolside, stay up-to-date on the latest news with complimentary access to thousands of newspapers and magazines on the PressReader app.

If you step just outside the lobby doors, you'll find yourself immersed in the French Quarter's hustle and bustle. Within walking distance are a plethora of popular restaurants and bars, plus easy access to the city's top attractions via New Orleans' Streetcars.
